Thanks for writing, Chris. Yes, I am bitterly disappointed in the Selectboard's action. I think it was a cop out and will continue to believe that we could have won, with good counsel. Even if the Board had voted to appeal, thus saving our options, the town could have voted in March whether to continue, and nothing would have been lost. I really have diminished respect for this Board.

Please, share with the Board this message of mine and the earlier one to you .

Chris, I could not stay for the end of the meeting, tonight. However, I was pleased to hear at least one new approach to the situation. My hope is that you-all decided to go ahead with an appeal, possibly allowing for a March vote to either approve or discontinue the action. My contention, all along, has been that an innovative and thorough lawyer can usually find a way to make the law work for the client. Our daughter has done it, over and over again, often by staying up all night and unearthing an old and still valid section of the law. My additional hope is that we go for the full appeal, not just what looks like the cheaper route of challenging the ANR on procedural grounds.
